Steel is a critical industrial metal for our country. Steel is an industrial metal with a variety of uses. Steel consumption positively correlates with economic growth. India is the world's second largest producer and consumer, well behind China. Steel demand in our country is set to grow significantly with massive investments planned for infrastructure development, including roads, highways, airports, seaports, housing, railways, defence, etc.

Steel market is driven by a number of factors - both domestic and global. Commodity markets are volatile by nature, and the steel market is no exception. It is necessary to manage price risk in the physical market by using a futures contract and it can also be used for investment purpose.

The program seeks to educate physical market participants, investors and others about the dynamics of the steel market so that buying / selling / trading decisions are well informed, scientific and cost-effective.
