Start-ups are driving major innovations that disrupt entire industries – from hospitality to mobility and financial services. Young tech companies, less than ten years old – have reached billion dollar valuations and are replacing incumbent technologies and existing business models. These young companies are powered by digitalisation, entrepreneurial spirit and the agility to pivot swiftly. Various companies have started to provide consulting services to help corporates maximise the benefits of their start-up engagement; they bring the lessons from many other start-up programmes and importantly understand how to attract the best entrepreneurs.
